

Economic Development and Job Creation Programs in Minnesota

October 2022

This publication provides a brief overview, in table format, of the state's programs designed to promote economic development and job creation.

Minnesota has a variety of programs designed to promote economic development and job creation throughout the state. The programs vary and include the provision of information, advice, and technical assistance; state-sponsored marketing and promotion; direct business subsidies in the form of grants and loans; and public funding of infrastructure development and redevelopment. The state also promotes economic development and job creation by supporting programs designed to educate and train its current and future workforce, such as higher education and workforce development programs, and through the unemployment insurance program.

The table in this publication summarizes economic development and job-creation initiatives that exist in statute. The table is organized into sections based on program type: Business Development (page 2), Business Finance (page 3), Community Finance (page 6), and Other (page 10). The table does not include programs and services whose primary focus is education, workforce training, or unemployment insurance or programs that exist only in session law or which were created by agency initiatives. Education, workforce training, and unemployment insurance programs are discussed in other publications found on the House Research Department website.

The following are common abbreviations and acronyms used in the table:

- DEED – Department of Employment and Economic Development
- DOR – Department of Revenue
- MDA – Minnesota Department of Agriculture
- MHFA – Minnesota Housing Finance Agency
- MNDOT – Minnesota Department of Transportation
- PCA – Pollution Control Agency
- PFA – Public Facilities Authority
- U of M – University of Minnesota
